

The visualization displays a 10x60 grid where each cell represents a data point. The grid is filled with gray cells, indicating the presence of data points. The distribution is sparse, with most data points concentrated in the first 30 columns. The 10th row (bottom) has the highest density of data points, followed by the 9th row. The 1st row (top) has the fewest data points.